5. COOKIES

Access to this website may involve the use of cookies. Cookies are small amounts of information that are stored in the browser used by each user so that the server remembers certain information that can later be used. This information allows you to be identified as a specific user and allows you to save your personal preferences, as well as technical information such as visits or specific pages you visit.

Those users who do not want to receive cookies or want to be informed before they are stored on their computer, can configure their browser for this purpose.

Most of today's browsers allow the configuration of cookies in 3 different ways:

TRAVELING TOGETHER

1. The cookies are never accepted.
2. The browser asks the user if each cookie should be accepted.
3. Cookies are always accepted.

The browser may also include the possibility of specifying better which cookies have to be accepted and which not. Specifically, the user can normally accept any of the following options:

1. Reject cookies from certain domains
2. Reject third-party cookies
3. Accept cookies as non-persistent
4. Allow the server to create cookies for a different domain.

6. Web BEACONS

This website may also contain web beacons (also known as web bugs). Web beacons are usually small images of a pixel by a pixel, visible or invisible placed inside the source code of the web pages of a website.

Web beacons serve and are used in a similar way to cookies. In addition, web beacons are often used to measure the traffic of users who visit a website and to be able to draw a pattern of the users of a site.

7. THIRD PARTIES

In some cases, we share information about visitors to this site anonymously or aggregated with third parties such as advertisers, sponsors or auditors for the sole purpose of improving our services. All these processing tasks will be regulated according to legal regulations and all your data protection rights will be respected in accordance with current regulations.

This site measures traffic with different solutions that can use cookies or web beacons to analyze what happens on our pages.

8. OTHER CONDITIONS OF USE REQUIRED BY THIS WEBSITE ARE:

The user undertakes, except with prior express and written authorization from travelingtogether.eu to use the information contained on the website, exclusively for their information, and may not directly or indirectly carry out commercial exploitation of the content to which they have access.
